

ABSTRACT

A treatment system for providing electromagnetic therapy and massage. The treatment system includes an electromagnetic field inductor for producing an electromagnetic field, and at least one magnetic ball. The magnetic ball includes a central magnet core covered in a nonmagnetic material, wherein the electromagnetic field is capable of causing the magnetic ball to move freely and randomly within the electromagnetic field so as to massage a body part placed within the electromagnetic field.